Iranian women's participation in economic activities can be traced back to the early 20th century, during the Constitutional Revolution (1905-1911). In this period, women primarily engaged in traditional roles—household management, embroidery, and small-scale trade. However, the socio-political upheavals and modernization efforts gradually opened pathways for more active engagement.

Mid-20th Century: Pioneering Women in Education and Work

The Pahlavi dynasty (1925-1979) marked a significant era of modernization and Westernization, which influenced women's roles considerably. Notable figures like Mohtaram Amin and others became symbols of women's empowerment. Despite these advances, societal expectations and religious norms continued to impose limitations, especially for women from conservative backgrounds.
